WORLD NEWS.

UNITED STATES. President Johnson is going to his ranch in Texas to rest until he undergoes his operation in about two weeks time. Before leaving Washington he is to give a televised news conference. His doctors stress that no emergency is involved, and that the President's health is excellent. There will be two operations, both minor ones; one is to repair a defect in the scar left from his gall bladder operation last year, the other is to remove a swollen membrane from his throat. Both conditions are reported to have caused him discomfort during his recent tour of the Far East.

VIETNAM. American fighter-bombers have again attacked Hanoi's rail link with China, and hit ground installations and barracks. Other aircraft dropped more than a million leaflets over Hanoi, explaining the Peace offer made at Manila last month. President's special envoy, Mr. Averil Harriman, is now in Bonn, and is to discuss the Vietnamese situation with West German government officials before leaving on Sunday for London.

KOREA. The United Nations delegate to the Mixed Armistice Commission on Korea warned North Korea that it is on a "collision course". The warning came during an emergency session at Panmunjon to discuss the recent killings of six American soldiers and one South Korean soldier south of the demilitarised zone. The United Nations delegate, who is an American general, told the Armistice Commission that responsibility for any ceasefires from continued acts of hostility would rest clearly with the North Koreans. He described the recent incident as a deliberate and vicious act of a blood-thirsty North Korean killer group. North Korea said at the meeting that United Nations troops made three incursions across the border on Thursday, and protested about an alleged build-up of arms in the demilitarised zone.

CHINA. East European News Agencies, reporting from Peking, say that thousands of 'Red Guards' who went to the capital to take part in a massive parade for the Chinese leader Mao Tse Tung have been asked to leave at once. The authorities are said to have pointed out that the Red Guards' presence in Peking created great difficulties in supplies and accommodation. One agency said that more than a million Guards had flocked to the capital.

INDONESIA. Another Indonesian Communist leader has been sentenced to death by a military tribunal in North Sumatra, for taking part in the abortive coup a year ago. He is the former secretary-general of the North Sumatra branch of the Indonesian Communist Party.

SINGAPORE Thirty Chinese students and ten policemen were injured in a demonstration; a violent clash broke out when 200 students, agitating for university status for their college, stormed the City Hall. An independent investigation has recommended that the Chinese community school should be no more than a junior college.

WEST GERMANY. The British Foreign Secretary, Mr. Brown, who is in Bonn for talks with the West German government, has had a meeting with the Chancellor, Dr. Erhardt. They discussed current political problems, including East-West relations, NATO, and Britain's possible entry into the Common Market. Mr. Brown, who began his visit on Thursday, with a meeting with his West German counterpart Dr. Schroeder, is continuing talks with him today, and he will also call on President Lübke.

MORE WORLD NEWS.

WASHINGTON. An agreement for a direct air service between New York and Moscow was signed in Washington ~~XXXXXX~~ on Friday. The service will probably start in a few month's time. Meanwhile, the first Russian airliner on the new regular service to Canada is on its way to Montreal. The service began this week with a flight to Moscow by a Canadian plane. British and Soviet airliners have been flying a direct service between London and Moscow for five years.

GHANA. Ghana's ruling National Liberation Council has appointed a commission to draft a new constitution for the country. The commission is to be headed by the Chief Justice Mr. Apupo Addo. An electoral committee has also been appointed, and will be headed by the former exiled Opposition leader.

ZAMBIA. A spokesman for Zambia's copper mining companies says that 139 European miners have resigned since last Friday. Kitwe and other mining towns are now reported quiet after Sunday's riots in which an English woman died.

EGYPT. In Cairo, Egypt and Syria have signed a joint defence agreement. The two countries are also to exchange ambassadors. They were formally merged in 1958, but Syria broke the links three years later.

MALTA. The Prime Minister of Malta has arrived in Australia on the start of a long tour which will include the United States, and Canada. Correspondents say that while in Australia he is likely to discuss trade and migration. During his visit to the United States he is expected to discuss the possibility that the American Sixth Fleet might make Malta its home port, instead of Villefranche in the south of France. He will also have talks about repair facilities in Malta for aircraft used by oil companies in the Middle East.

AUSTRALIA. An American submarine, the 'Teru', has run aground on the Great Barrier Reef off the coast of Queensland. It is a conventional submarine, and has a crew of 60 aboard. She is in no immediate danger.

EUROPE. Abnormal weather conditions are reported from many parts of Europe. In Central Italy the river Arno burst its banks, and flooded Florence. Paris has had its earliest snowfall for about 60 years. Heavy snowfalls cover most of Switzerland, where an avalanche has killed three people. Snow has also fallen in Holland, Belgium, and Norway.

GREECE. Hospital workers have begun a 48 hour strike for better pay and conditions. The government has called in the army and navy to prepare meals for patients. More than 20,000 doctors, dentists and chemists have also threatened to strike over salaries.

That's all for today (Friday) - we haven't been able to get any for earlier in the week and there appear to be one or two points that we're a bit behind on, for instance the announcement about LBJ's operation. Still, if there's anything extra tomorrow we'll stick it on the last page as usual.

NEWS ABOUT BRITAIN.

More than 100,000 car workers throughout Britain are now out of work or on short time because of the government's wages and prices freeze, or because of strikes. The worst hit factories are the BMC ones, which have made 18,000 men redundant. They finish work today. At the same time, 35,000 men at 14 BMC factories are idle because of a strike by 200 key workers in protest over the redundancies. Officials of the two big car industry unions, the Transport Workers and the Amalgamated Engineers, are to have urgent talks in London on Monday about the strike.

The British Road Federation has warned the Minister of Transport Mrs. Barbara Castle that it will oppose any move to restrict road traffic by 'road pricing'. Mrs. Castle has said that she is considering the possibility of charging for motoring on congested roads in peak periods. The Road Federation says this is merely another way of restricting the road user. It would deter commuters from driving by car in the city centres, and would place additional strain on public transport, which is already inadequate. They also add that road pricing would radically alter shopping habits, and this would have serious effects on the retail trade.

In the House of Commons, a Conservative Opposition Motion, accusing the government of failing in its farm policies, has been defeated. During the debate the Conservative spokesman on agricultural affairs, Mr. Godber, said the industry had lost confidence in the government's policies, as farmers saw their prospects withering away. Replying, the Minister of Agriculture Mr. Peart accused the Conservatives of spreading 'gloom and despondency'.

There have been questions in the House of Commons about the controversial play "Us", dealing with the war in Vietnam, which is being presented by the Royal Shakespeare Company in London. A Conservative Opposition member said it is full of "poisonous anti-american propaganda", and as the government supports United States policy in Vietnam he asked them to review the £90,000 subsidy granted to the Royal Shakespeare Company. The minister responsible for the Arts, Miss Jennie Lee, said she has no intention of stopping the money. She added, "It will be a very bad day for this country when our arts and theatres simply reflect whatever happens to be the policy of the government." The Royal Shakespeare Company has announced plans for a theatre which form part of a new arts centre in London. It will be in the Barbican area, near St. Pauls Cathedral; a big new development in an area almost completely destroyed by bombing during the second World War. Already towering blocks of flats, offices and shops have been built, and more and more people are now living in the heart of the City, instead of only working there and going home to the suburbs every night. The theatre will seat about 1,200 people, and the stage will be specially designed without a proscenium arch so that actors and audience are brought closer together. It is hoped that the arts centre will also include an Art Gallery, a library and a concert hall.

The former chairman of British Railways, Lord Beeching, has said that Britain will need 64 new towns over the next 30 years. Speaking at an engineers conference, Lord Beeching said that about four new towns should be started every year. One problem, when all this had finished about 80 percent of all flat land in the country would have been used for towns.

An official statement on people who died last year shows that heart disease remains the country's number 1 killer. Well over 100,000 men and women died from it in England and Wales, more than three times the number who died from cancer.

SATURDAY'S WORLD NEWS EXTRAS

ITALY(See page 2.) A massive rescue operation is under way in huge areas of North and Central Italy ravaged by floods. The water has receded in some areas, leaving cities and towns under a coating of slimy mud. About 50,000 rescue workers, including troops and police are engaged, and amphibious planes and helicopters are being used to reach people still marooned. Thousands have had to leave their homes, and so far more than thirty deaths have been reported. There are fears that the death toll may go higher. In Florence there is a shortage of food and drinking water; major art treasures are said to be safe. Many people have been evacuated from the Venice region, where the floods are described as the worst for over 1,000 years, with water running into St. Marks Cathedral. Many other towns and cities are still under water.

In Southern Austria, 11 people are reported to have died in floods and heavy snow in three alpine provinces. A state of emergency has been declared in some regions.

In Switzerland, blizzards have blanketed much of the country in deep snow, cutting roads and communications. Several people have been killed in avalanches.

In Yugoslavia, at least three people died in fierce gales which swept the country.

There has also been serious flooding in eastern Panama. Many people are reported missing.

INDIA. The Prime Minister of India, Mrs. Gandhi, has flown to the state of Bihar to discuss famine relief measures. Bihar and parts of the neighbouring state of Andhra Pradesh, where she is going tomorrow, are facing famine because of crop failure due to lack of rain, and several people are reported to have died from starvation. The state authorities are appealing to international bodies to provide food, cattle fodder, blankets and medicines.

Correction: that name should be Uttar Pradesh. Andhra Pradesh is, of course, much further south.

VIETNAM. Another engagement between American ships and North Vietnamese coastal batteries, north of the demilitarised zone. No casualties reported, but North Vietnamese say some hits were scored.

More air attacks over North Vietnam as well: 2 US planes shot down.

Heavy ground fighting near the Cambodian border, 50 miles north west of Saigon: US and South Vietnamese troops have pinned down a North Vietnamese force, in a fortified network of tunnels and bunkers. US reinforcements are being flown in.

RHODESIA. Mr. Smith's reply to the British proposals is being studied in London. Contents of the reply have not been disclosed, and probably won't be until the ministers have finished studying it.

ADDIS ABABA. The official opening today of the Organisation for African Unity conference has been held up because an OAU mission sent to try to heal the rift between Ghana and Guinea has failed.

CUBA. Ten dancers of the Cuban National Ballet, now in Paris, have asked for political asylum in France. The company gives its final performance in Paris tonight before leaving for Budapest.

MOTOR RACING. The BARC has presented its Gold Medal to Australian Jack Brabham in recognition of his victory this year in one of his own cars. This is his second Gold Medal.

CANADA. The External Affairs Minister, Mr. Martin, has left on an official visit to Poland, Russia and Italy. He is to have talks with government leaders, and in Warsaw he will discuss the future activities of the International Control Commission on Vietnam.

LATEST NEWS ABOUT BRITAIN

The European spell of bad weather has also hit Britain. Bristol had nearly two inches of rain during the night, and there are reports of flooding in the surrounding areas. South-east England had its first light snowfalls of the winter today, and in many parts of Britain it is a cold wet day, which will probably tonight's bonfire celebrations.

(Today is the 361st anniversary of the plot to blow up Parliament.)

Mr. Heath, leader of the Opposition, says he expects a General Election before the present government has done its full term. At the news conference, he was asked about recent reports of bitter ill-feeling between himself and Mr. Wilson. He replied, "I have no comments on Mr. Wilson."

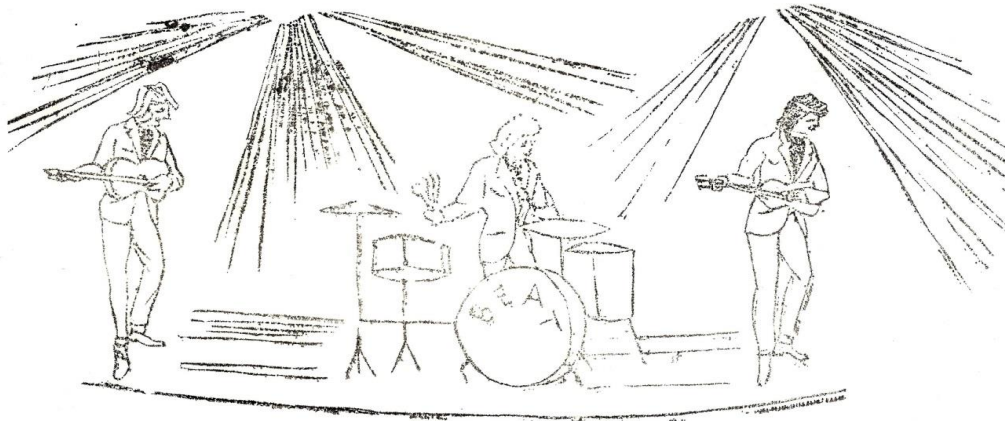

Surgeons in Leeds have successfully replaced three valves in the heart of a 43 year old man. Blood from 20 donors was needed for the six hour operation. The man's heart was placed in a water jacket to cool it, and at one stage was stopped and re-started with an electric shock. Medical authorities consider the technique to be a step forward in this field of surgery. The man, who was previously almost bed-ridden, is now expected to be working again next year. Two of the new valves are metal, the other is plastic.

A Bill has been published which aims to ease the restrictions on Sunday entertainment in Britain. It is a private members bill, sponsored by Lord Willis, and proposes a relaxation of restrictions governing sports, games and dances, as well as other entertainment. At present, Sunday entertainment is limited by many acts of Parliament, some of which date back to the 16th century.

As usual, in spite of some trouble in the ionosphere, this news was recorded from BBC broadcasts received in the Radio Shack, with the assistance of PIV, who made a new bit for the tape recorder which had broken.

DEEP SEA DIVER

I could stand it no longer. The time measuring part of my brain had long since given up the unequal struggle but I was certain that I had broken the record. The radio set secured to the wall had not spoken for what had seemed four days; it had been my only contact with the outside world...and I decided to use it. After switching on, adjusting the frequency, and tuning the aerial I keyed the call-up sign - SQ2, SQ2, SQ2.....

It did not seem such a long time ago that I had accepted the bet that I could stay on the bottom of the ocean for a longer period than any other human being. In this year of 2016 A.D. with so many frontiers extended beyond credulity, especially in the field of Space research, we were still woefully ignorant of the world beneath the waves. Only in the last decade had bathyspheres successfully probed to the bottom of the major oceans but the human frailties in the face of the deep, mysterious, silent waters had prevented exploitation or prolonged study of its secrets. Hence the discussion at the Royal Society Club of the length of time a solitary man could spend on the Ocean bed utterly cut off from his normal environment. It gave me great pleasure to call Foreythe-Smythe's bluff and take on the challenge to stay 300 days under water and earn the wager of $250,000,000. A lot of money even in these days of devaluation. We sealed the wager with a hand-shake.....

.....SQ2, SQ2, SQ2. I had tapped out that signal for at least an hour and still I could get no reply. Only after I had been right through all the usual listening frequencies did I realize that there was complete radio silence. I also realized that I could not possibly stand much more of this terrible isolation and I would have to make my own way to the surface. Fastening my safety belt and clipping on my pressurized breathing mask I commenced to open the valves.

BEWARE.....

One baby out of every eight born in Great Britain forced a man into sudden marriage!

So much for the figures, with luck FID will not find himself the father of that one baby. The woman that FID has, so unabashed, seduced may try "The Great Deception" and swear to FID that he is responsible for her impending motherhood, and will hope, nay, expect FID to marry her; in such cases it is FID's duty to do so, and there is nothing that FID can do to get out of it!

There is another approach the woman may try, she will tell FID of her great love for him; it appears that love whitewashes sins away, and if nothing else comes of it, it will clear her conscience. She will undoubtedly repeat her miss-deed, and FID will be lulled into a sense of security, knowing that there is always a young lady waiting for him, and with whom he can share mutual pleasures.

As time passes, if all goes well, FID will notice that his young lady is getting restless and her mood will pass onto FID. This mood will play on FID's mind, at this time his young lady will swear that each time that they repeat their misdeed it will be the last time that it will ever happen outside marriage. FID will never know whether he is coming or going, and will want to know for his own piece of mind; and the only way to be sure, is of course to marry the girl!

Yet another approach a woman may try, she will be remorseful, so ashamed of her transgression that she will say that she can't face life anymore. She will scream, wail and cry to heaven. She will play her tragic role up to the hilt, relying on FID's humane instincts to propose and make an honest woman of her!

Needless to say, she will try many other methods to bring FID to the Altar, but there is still one sure way out.....
